'Arsenic For Infection'

The recent letter to the editor by Henry Wallace indicated his incensed distaste for columnist David Lawrence, the C.I.A. and "criminals" fighting Castro. Mr. Wallace expressed much sympathy for Castro and all the oppressed peoples of the dictator governments throughout the world.

Not being a member of the John Birch Society or any ultra super-duper society, I would like Mr. Wallace to know that my unorganized but vast fraternity of American citizens is firmly opposed to his line of reasoning. In fact, my fraternity feels that Castro's succession to Batista is like taking arsenic to cure an infection. Since Mr. Wallace cited all "the injustice swirling around this country," he should be reminded that any American citizen can leave this society at any time without the barricade of a barbed wire fence or peril of being shot by armed border guards. A hint to the wise is usually sufficient, but since there obviously exist so many unwise, let it be further known that plane connections to Moscow can easily be initiated out of Standiford Field.
